

Musical instruments donation

Yesterday was an exciting day for St. Oliver's who were delighted to welcome Tony Clayton-Lea to the school. Tony very kindly donated an impressive selection of musical instruments through the Music Generation project. Tony is known far and wide as a distinguished author and journalist with an impressive career comprising of Irish Times columnist and critic for Hot Press Magazine, to name just a few endeavours. Student musicians from St. Oliver's were thrilled to meet and chat with Tony and accept such a terrific gift that will certainly be put to good use. There to greet Tony was Ms. Moore from the music department as well as music students from the junior and senior school.
